MURDER INVESTIGATION CONTINUES

Police Denial Refuted by Mrs. Ray Wentz, who Said Officers Visited Her Home Yesterday Afternoon. "They Brought a Doctor Along Thinking I Would Faint." Henry Gibbs and Mrs. Wentz to be Re-Grilled Today

The state was expected to make startling headway this afternoon in solving the murder of Arthur Schultz, thirty, returned soldier.

Schultz was found at the end of Glendale court with a 38-caliber bullet wound through his breast at about 11 o'clock Sunday night. He died on the way to Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Ray Wentz, Phillips court, was to be at police headquarters this afternoon.

Henry Gibbs was also to be there.

The state is pinning hopes that Gibbs will identify the woman whom Schultz met in front of the American Theater Sunday evening an hour before the fatal shots were heard on Glendale court. Glendale court runs parallel with Phillips court with one row of houses in between.

When seen by a Chronicle-Telegram reporter this afternoon, Mrs. Wentz said:

"The police haven't got a damned thing."

"I'm going to police headquarters this afternoon and tell that rotten bunch of policemen just what I think about them," she continued.

"Say, ain't that plainclothes man Zarnke. some detective?" ridiculed Mrs. Wentz.

"The whole police force are a bright bunch," Mrs. Wentz said. "They haven't got a thing on me."

"What do you think happened yesterday afternoon?" she inquired. "Why, Police Chief Stankard, that punk detective, and Dr. Anderson came here ready to put me under arrest, I guess. They brought Dr. Anderson along, thinking that I would faint or something. Wasn't that good?"

"From here," continued Mrs. Wentz, "they went to my husband's store, dragged him through the streets to police headquarters and put him through a long grueling."

Police Chief Stankard and policemen absolutely denied that other people had been interrogated by the police in an effort to solve the puzzling murder.

Who is telling the truth?

Mrs Wentz said this afternoon that police had circulated the story about town without knowing what they were talking about.

Police denied that Wentz had been grilled at police headquarters.

"The police promised to keep the whole affair out of the paper,' said Mrs. Went. "We were surprised to see the whole thing with the names mentioned last evening."

"I suppose our names will be in the paper tomorrow night," Mrs. Wentz said her husband told her last evening.

"We have exhausted about every clew we have," said Police Chief Stankard this afternoon. "I was at the fair grounds yesterday afternoon and know that Wentz was not there. We have not got all the evidence but we're going to have it pretty soon."

Mrs. Wentz said she did not know Schultz.

"What kind of a man is he?" inquired Mrs. Wentz. "Is he tall and stout and what kind of complexion has he?"

"I have not been away from home from last Friday until yesterday," continued Mrs. Wentz. "I repeat that they haven't got anything on me. My husband also told the police that he was at his office Sunday night until one o'clock. He had a meeting of the managers of the six stores of the Superior Electric Company. We had Sandusky, Erie and Lorain people as our guests Sunday and Monday."

"The police got word that I was nervous," said Mrs. Wentz. "I was in bed a short time Monday because of the hard work connected with entertaining twelve or fifteen people Sunday. I spent all day Saturday getting the stuff ready for the meals."

"Wentz informed police that he, Walter Murbach and Homer Dunlap were in the Superior Electric Company building working on a report until nearly one o'clock Sunday night, the evening of the murder.

Police are covering up the details in the murder.

"We read as much details of the murder in last night's paper as we knew ourselves," said one policeman today. The information did not come from the police, but first hand from all persons interrogated by the police.

"Gibbs and Schultz left the Eagles club at about 10 o'clock Sunday evening. The two walked as far as the American theater when Schultz met a woman."

"This woman that Schultz met," said Mrs. Wentz, "had a fur scarf, didn't she? and was also bareheaded. I never go bareheaded."

"They say Schultz and the woman walked toward the Brown hotel," said Mrs. Wentz. "They must have meant the Jackson hotel."

The couple turned down West avenue and into the west side district.

The slayer, according to residents of Glendale court, crossed the street from Lamberton's home and slowly and leisurely walked to Furnace street. Apparently the man was unconcerned as to the outcome.

Detective Zarnke, who revisited Glendale court this noon, said that the two girls interrogated Monday, had been completely exonerated.

Mrs. Mable Clifford and her twin sister, Miss Laura Atkins, admitted 22 years of age, said this afternoon that they were shocked when they read last night's Chronicle-Telegram. "It was exactly what we said to the reporter and the police," said Mrs. Clifford.

Mrs. Clifford and Miss Atkins were in good spirits this afternoon on being informed that they were held by police to be completely exonerated of any connection in the murder.

The exoneration came when a brother of Joseph Robertson Glendale court, informed the police that he saw the twin sisters going to the rooming house on Glendale court at about 11:15 o'clock.

Considerable significance is attached to the finding of a cap and a soft felt hat near the scene of the murder. Police are sure the hat and cap belong to the slayer and the victim. It will be of immense value in ultimately clearing up the mystery, it is believed.

While police this afternoon were making a frantic effort to find some tangible clew in the murder, members of the Eagles lodge and friends and relatives gathered at 218 Eighth street to pay final tribute to the murdered man.

NEW VILLAGE SIGNERS SUE THE TOWNSHIP

North Elyria Village Signers Bring Mandamus Proceedings

Mandamus proceedings were begun in the court of common pleas yesterday to compel the trustees of Elyria township to make a move towards incorporating the proposed village of North Elyria.

The proceeding was filed by Charles Fowl and Dell Johnson, naming L. W. Adams, Dan Eason and John Haffner, trustees as defendants.

The case will be heard Friday morning at 9 o'clock before Judge Redington, and will be contested.

This proceeding ought to interest every person in this city. The petitioners are seeking to take all Elyria township and form a separate corporation. This would prevent Elyria from growing to the northward and would stop annexation proceedings. The Chamber of Commerce and the city council is expected to be interested sufficiently to get busy and block legislation that would be detrimental to Elyria.

Such was the acuteness of the situation in the United States that President Gompers cut short his visit in Europe in order that he might come home to help iron out the voluminous problems.

Boy Found Gagged And Tied to a Tree Near Fire Station

Frank Scott, a 15-year-old boy living at Lake avenue, was victim of a gang of nine boys older than himself last night, and but for having been rescued by the police might have been seriously maltreated

He was found in the rear of fire station No. 3, near the B. & O. tracks tied by the wrists to a tree, and with a dirty greasy rag over his mouth to stifle his cries.

He stated that during the evening the boys had captured a younger brother and shoved him into a street opening protected by a grating. The boy called for help from his brother, and when he went to his rescue they turned on him, and tied him up, then abandoning him. He was tied so tightly that he had the marks of the ropes on his arms.

The police arrested one boy, and he was later released on his father going his bail. The rest of the gang are known and will be asked to interview the mayor as fast as they can be rounded up.

The police state that on a previous occasion the same gang tied a boy to the B. & O. tracks and if he had not been rescued a tragedy might have resulted.

JEFF CRAWLS INTO MOUTH OF MUTT, LIFE IS SAVED

BIG ALLIGATOR REFUSES TO DEVOUR HIS INFANT COMPANION.

That Mutt, the large alligator in the park, has a warm place in his heart, if he has one, for little Jeff, the small alligator, was demonstrated yesterday when the park keeper was feeding them on raw meat.

Mutt was eagerly snapping up the choice morsels from the end of a stick, and Jeff wanted some too. As Mutt opened his mouth to grab the meat Jeff swam into the cavity, and the big alligator's jaws closed on him. It looked as if it was all over with Jeff, but Mutt proved that he was not a cannibal, for he quickly opened his mouth and Jeff swam out as gracefully as Jonah ever left the receptacle that he is popularly supposed to have occupied in the whale.

According to the principle laid down by Budd Fisher, Jeff ought to have been a total wreck, but he wasn't and is as frisky as ever after his narrow escape.

Mrs Albert Barbknecht and Mrs. D .F. Dee will entertain the ladies of St. Paul's church on Thursday afternoon.

REV. NEIGHBOR GAVE SPLENDID SERMON SUNDAY

A verbatum report of a sermon delivered Sunday morning at the First Baptist church.

After the pastor, R. E. Neighbour, had shown that the Leaven of Herod lay in the Federation of Religion and Politics, of the Church and the State, he took some thirty minutes to show how the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America had called upon all, the pastors of the land for a special message on Democracy in Industry and the Church and Social Reconstruction

Mr. Neighbour quoted copiously and at length from the material submitted to the pastors by the Federal Council for the Labor Sunday sermon. He showed that in all of this the church was being called to leave the one message of Christ crucified, risen and coming again, to preach a social doctrine.

It would be impossible to quote the sermon in full but what follows is a verbatum report of the concluding remarks of this wonderful message delivered to a full house and which should be heard by the people everywhere.

Mr. Neighbor said. "All that I have said leads me to ask some potent questions:

1. Is the church builded to inaugurate a new social order?
2. Is the church sent to prescribe policies for the solving of social unrest?
3. Is the church commanded to enter the realm of ethical relationship?
4. Is the church commissioned to equalize wealth and wages?
5. Is the church taught to pursue a collective conception of the Gospel
6. Is the church following the call of God when she heeds the call of the twentieth century to a "new vision," "new message" and "new methods?"

In answer to these questions I beg to present some fundamental scriptural facts:

The one message of the Christ is Christ. He is the theme of all themes. The Word is Christ. Christ is the Word. Christ crucified, risen and coming again present the three great facts of Christian doctrine.

The Holy Spirit convicts the sinner concerning Christ, and shows the saint the things of Christ.

There is a steady drift toward "another gospel which is not another." Some of its followers have left the faith altogether, while they consider the church the center of a decadent theology. Other followers are slowly shunning the cross while they place special emphasis on a "new gospel."

The social preacher is wearied with throwing out "lifelines" to struggling sinners. He claims that what men want is "a new ship and a new crew and a captain who knows his course." The new ship is a new message. The new crew is a new method. The new captain who knows his course, is the preacher who knows the new message and follows the new method.

The new message must be adapted to the needs of the twentieth century—to the wants of the men of today—forgetting that Christ is "the same yesterday, and today, and forever." (Heb. 13:8).

The new method must meet the demands of the new message and give men the uplift they need—forgetting that Christ alone "is made unto us wisdom and righteousness, and sanctification and redemption." (1 Cor. 1:30).

The new captain must be wise to comprehend and to pursue the spirit of the age—forgetting that the spirit of the age is the spirit who energizes the sons of disobedience.

Farewell to the gospel of Christ—a new message is demanded. Farewell to the story of Him who died and was buried and who rose again on the third day. Farewell to the story of His coming—a sad farewell.

Farewell to the method of Christ—a new method is imposed. Farewell to the Calvary appeal. Farewell to the "exclusiveness" of preaching. Farewell to the personal touch—the "one by one" method—a sad farewell.

Farewell to the apostles of Christ. Farewell to the preachers of the old school—new captains, who know their course are needed. Farewell to Christ, and to Peter and to Paul; farewell to pastors and teachers—a sad farewell.

The message of the social reformer is "another gospel, which is not another." The key note of its message is this: "American Protestantism is adjusting itself to the modern world, by laying special stress upon the social implications of the gospel." Just so. "The social implications of the gospel." This is the new message for a new, or a modern world.

First of all, then, we are asked to concede the fact that the modern world is quite a different world from the world that the Lord Jesus Christ knew, or that Peter knew, or that Paul knew.

But Where is the Difference?

Has the modern world a different heart than the ancient world had? Does more culture mean more Christlikeness? Does more wisdom mean more godliness? Does a deeper scientific insight mean a deeper spirituality?

Was the culture of ancient Rome, with her imperial highways, with her arches and aqueducts, with her paintings and poetry, with her fountains and baths—was the culture of Rome a mark of Chrislikeness? Was it not written of Rome, "And even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge God gave them over to a reprobate mind"? (Rom. 1:28).

Was the wisdom of ancient Egypt, with her wealth of learning, with her great libraries and centers of knowledge, with her Thebes and Alexandria and Memphis, with her obelisks and catacombs and pyramids—was the wisdom of Egypt a mark of her godliness? Was she not rather, with all her sages and seers, "given over" to nature worship, with the most horrid of accompanying rites? Her wisest men worshipped the Nile, or an ox, or a forest tree. Her wisdom produced Jannes and Jambres, who withstood God, but not Joshua and Moses, who followed God.

Was the scientific insight of Babylon, with her philosophers and great men; with her mighty walls and massive buildings; with her hanging gardens, decked with flowers and filled with birds; with her magnificent temples, overlaid with ivory and gold;—was the scientific insight of Babylon a root for deeper spirituality?

But where is the difference? Has the world really changed? If it has at all surpassed the culture or the wisdom or science of the old world, has its surpassing "virtues" altered its attitude toward the Lord and His Christ?

Has the wisdom of Germany, with her great minds, led her to the feet of the Lord Jesus; or hat it enthralled her in human pholosophies and critical vagaries which have stolen her away from her true God?

Has the culture of France, with the world following fast in the wake of her fashions, brought that great commonwealth to the cross of Calvary? If so, why did one of her great statesmen boast of having driven Christ from her schools and from her colleges and insist that they were ready to drive Him from the State altogether?

Has the scientific successes of England, the nation that leads the world in commercialism, the mistress of the seas, made England more zealous to lay up treasures above?

The fact is, that the modern world has a heart just as vile as the ancient world. She is just as far from God as were the people of old. She is just as thirsty for blood, just as sanguinary in war as were the nations of yore.

Has the modern world brought forth improved fruits unto holiness? Are her conceptions more heavenly?

Church of the living God, beware!

Earth's nations are beasts at heart. "Corruptible man," "birds," and "four-footed beasts" are the dominant figures on the insignia of the nations. The nations of the earth are not ready to acknowledge the sway of an absent Christ.

The heart is still "deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked" (Jer. 17:9), "Evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murderers, thefts, etc., still proceed out of the hearts of men.

The heart has not changed. "The course of nature" is still "set on fire of hell." The world has not changed. It is still sick at heart, it is still rotten at the core. Its foundation is bitter—it cannot send forth sweet water.

The modern world does not need another gospel—it needs Christ. The modern world does not need special stress upon any supposed social implications of the gospel. It is getting too much of this "social gospel" already.

But, again, what are the supposed social implications of the gospel, the basis of this new message? They are the underlying principles of the Men and Religion Forward Movement. And what was the outstanding feature of that movement? Evangelism? No. Missions? No. It was "Economics."

And what are the supposed social implications of the gospel? The same as the fundamental tenets of socialism. And for what does Socialism stand? Personal regeneration? No. Repentance? No. Faith in Christ? No It stands for "the supremacy of brotherly love." It forgets, however, that true love is "of God," that he that loveth is born of God—that brotherhood must be based on Fatherhood, and that God is the Father only of those who believe—that true love must be His love shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost.

And what are the supposed social implications of the gospel? The same as the basic principles of the latest church fad—social service. And what does "social service" mean? It means just what "the supremacy of love" means. Does it mean the saving of a poor lost sinner? No. It means society, getting saved. Does it mean personal regeneration? No. It means "social regeneration." Does it mean "repentance and faith?" No. It means the "contagion of the good."

This social gospel calls upon the church to preach a new message.

The Cross has failed, preach "Economics."

The Resurrection has failed, preach "Civic-righteousness."

"Ne-genics" have failed, preach "Eugenics."

The Social Gospel presupposes that the Church was set for the salvation of the world; for the establishing of social equity;—therefore, it is driven to a new message, because the old one has not made good, has not saved the world.

Such a "premise" is wrong. Such an "idea" has wrought untold havoc in the Church of God. The Church was never set to save the world. The Church was never commissioned to bring in a catholic peace. The Church was only to call out of the nations a people for His name. The Church was only to preach the gospel as a witness.

Stand with your risen Head, O, Church of Christ! Preach the same old story? Plead with sinners in the same old way!

A new message is not needed; neither is a new METHOD needed.

The Church should not feel called upon to participate in every purity league, and co-operate with every civic-righteousness regime, and join hands with every "kindness to animals" society.

The Church should not feel compelled to fraternize with every "white ribbon club," and fellowship with every "city charity club," and feast with every "sanitation organization."

The Church should not feel herself forced to interest herself with every phase of civic life, to enter into every "plea for a world-wide peace" and to endorse every agency for "human uplift."

The gospel that all these human organizations proclaim is not our gospel. The aim of all these man-made schemes is not our aim. Human schemes (and their number is legion) must fail of their purpose. The world cannot be redeemed by any supposed social implications of the gospel. The inhabited earth is rushing on and on in its Christ-rejecting spirit, to certain judgment.

If the Church should follow the call of the Federal Council and adjust herself to the modern world and preach and heed every call of a world struggling to lift itself out of the mire of sin, then the Church would have no time and no heart to preach the cross.

Let the Church stand aloof? She needs no "new message" and has no time for a "new method."

She has plenty to do without "joining hands with other agencies" and meeting the socialistic demands of the day.

All human improvement and progress is doomed to decay. A better environment cannot save, and an "up to date" education cannot sanctify.

In spite of all advances in knowledge and forward steps in science; in spite of all the combined efforts of all human agencies to bring in the kingdom; still, the world is moving surely and swiftly away from God, and is rushing headlong in its Christ rejection into the vortex of the most terrific tribulation it has ever known.

The Church can do most, yea, the Church can do all that she can do, by seeking to save men out of this untoward generation. The old, old story of the gospel is the only story that will do this. God hath chosen by the foolishness of preaching to save those who believe. God is now "taking out of the nations a people for His name."

A New Message is not Needed—A New Method is not Needed—Nor is a New Captain.

Let the Churches cease to demand men who preach "smooth things." The world will not endure healthful teaching, the world will turn aside to fables; but let our Churches seek men "who stand in the old paths" and preach the old time gospel with the old time fire sent down from heaven.

Let the Churches cling to captains who will preach, not in the "enticing words of the wisdom of men," but who will preach in the "demonstration of the Spirit and of power."

Let the Church of Christ reject the social gospel; for it would rob her of her one great message and turn her to a "new message," a "new method" and to a "new captain" following the way of the world and ignoring the Word of God.

NILE PRINCESS SEEKS HUSBAND

San Francisco, Sept. 3—Anyone want to marry a real sure 'nuff princess? Step right up and don't be bashful—for apparently she isn't.

Princess Della Pattra, a royal Egyptian scion of the purest blood, has come to America for a triple purpose.

First—and most important—she wants to secure a good, American husband.

Next, she is bent upon investing at laest $50,000 in an up-to-date wardrobe, and third, she means to tour the country and see with her own bright dark eyes the wonders and speindors of which she has heard.

This modern "Cleopatra" from the Nile caries an engaging smile which reveals two rows of pearly teeth. The dress she wore when she reached this city included loose baggy trousers, which were confined by bands a little above the ankles.

Her ankles, by the way, are not the twin slender shafts that support the average American girl. But she's an honest to goodness princess.

"GOOD OLD HYPO-COD," SAYS PRINTER, "100% BETTER AFTER FIRST BOTTLE"

Two Years Sickness Left Him So Weak Could Scarcely Rise From Chair.

WANTS OTHERS TO KNOW EARLE'S GREAT REMEDY

"I had been sick for two years following a most severe attack of the influenza and I became so weak I could hardly raise myself out of my chair. I had agonizing pains and aches in every portion of my body and could get no rest at night. The most tempting food was nauseating to me and everything inside seemed out of whack," testified a printer whose name and address follows. "I tried remedy after remedy without the slightest relief when a good lady told me of this truly wonderful Earle's Hypo-Cod. After taking a course in the Earle Remedy I can honestly say that I feel like a new man. I was in a terribly rundown condition but I am now 100 per cent better than before I took my first bottle of Earle's Hypo-Cod. It has relieved all my troubles and I feel I cannot recommend it too highly and I hope you will print this for others to know of this wonderful health-builder—good old Earle's Hypo-Cod," concludes Mr. Harry H. Nichols, a printer of 648 Kipling Street, Akron, Ohio. This is a sample of the many thousands of testimonials which pour into the office of the Earle Chemical Co., of Wheeling, W. Va., in grateful appreciation of what Earle's Hypo-Cod their nationally known remedy has done for debilitated folks in every section of the country. People who had lingered for months and even years in a state of invalidism have suddenly, as in the above instance, been restored to health and strength and renewed joy of life. So long as this great tonic is available no sufferer need give up hope. If you are languishing under the depression or excesses of any kind try a bottle of Earle's Hypo-Cod. It will speedily drive out the devil's despair; restore your appetite and enable you to eat the things which you desire most. It will supply the impoverished blood with the rich red cells so necessary to healthy functioning of all the vital organs there by putting color in the cheek, sparkle in the eye, spring in the step and happiness in the place of lassitude and gloom. Earle's Hypo-Cod is a splendid general tonic for sick, convalescent or merely weakly people and is particularly recommended for this season of the year to prepare the system for the duties and pleasures of winter. For the renewal of energy and enthusiasm in run down constitutions there is nothing to equal Earle's Hypo-Cod. The price is $1.50 plus 5c war tax, for a large bottle and it is on sale at Harry A. Crandall's Drug Co., this city, and first-class drug stores in all nearby towns.—Adv.

Happy Mothers

Many mothers who in order to keep the home neat and attractive, the children well fed and dressed, continually overdo.

The experience of motherhood alone causes a severe strain upon the system, from which many women recover slowly, and serious feminine disorders may develop unless great care is taken to prevent them.

To such women Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is invaluable. For many years this root and herb medicine has been recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills, restoring them to a normal, healthy condition.

Mrs. Morgan's Case

East Hampton, N.Y.—"For two years I suffered with a female weakness, pains in my back and painful periods, and I was so weak and tired that I was not able to do my work. A friend told me to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it gave me great relief. My pains left me and I am now able to do my work and feel fine. You can publish my testimonial and if your Vegetable Compound does others as much good as it has me I will be very much pleased."—Mrs. CHARLES E. MORGAN, CARE OF E. L. Dennett.

A Word to Childless Women

There are women everywhere who long for children in their homes yet are denied this happiness on account of some functional disorder which in many cases would readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such women should not give up hope until they have given this wonderful medicine a trial.

The President and Labor

President Wilson in his message to labor Monday, among other very good things said:

> "I am calling for as early a date as practicable a conference in which authoritative representatives of labor and of those who direct labor will discuss fundamental means of bettering the whole relationship of capital and labor and putting the whole question of wages upon another footing."

The suggestion will appeal to all those who have studied or are interested in the industrial condition. We do not know of course how far reaching or how fundamental the means the President has in mind will be. But this we do know, that it is a step in the right direction.

The remuneration for labor must in some manner be put on a more scientific foundation if we are to have anything like an enduring peacable relationship between the employer and the employee. We are prone to assert, and it is a good mouthful, that "the interest of labor and capital are common or identical and hurting one will hurt the other." This is true and yet it is only half true. Surely the paralysis of trade, closing up the employers' place of business destroys the job of the laborer. However, the trouble does not mainly lie in the cases when business is paralyzed but when industry is a going concern. When production is being carried on apace. In these cases under present plan it is puerile to declare the interest of labor and so-called capital are identical, in the results or the distribution of the results of the products. Each is endeavoring to gain the largest share possible and we might just as well admit it. It should be so arranged that the interest of each is identical with the other but it is not so now. The real struggle in the industrial world is over the division of profits or supposed profits.

Labor claims it does not get its just share. What is just share? How can this be determined? How can s be arranged so that each will feel it is being justly lt with by the other? Mr. Wilson it appears to us at st recognizes the difficulty. Now the remedy! Has got one? We hope so. If he has not got one, one may come from a frank discussion by leaders of each side, if y both realize, as does Mr. Wilson, that a different foot- or foundation must be secured.

We will watch with interest this development. We er with the President on the question of the League Nations, but in his aspiration to better labor's condi- n we believe in him and while he has in some cases acted too blindly, perhaps, the leadership of certain ones the labor union field, we believe his remedies for certain ditions have been helpful and fair reaching and he is nestly striving to aid in the solution of this all-impor- nt question.

We should like to see him address himself to this stion at this hour. It is imperative that it should be ne.

On this question, the deliverance of the commission the church and Social Service of the Federated Council Churches of Christ in America, is worth citing. Among er things this commission says:

> "A deep cause of unrest in industry is the denial to labor of a share in industrial management. Controversies over wages and hours never go to the root of the industrial problem. Democracy must be applied to the government of industry as well as to the government of the nation and as rapidly and as far as the workers shall become able and willing to accept such responsibility. Laborers must be recognized as being entitled to as much consideration as employers and their rights must be equally safeguarded. This may be accomplished by assuring the workers, as rapidly as it can be done with due consideration to conditions, a fair share in control, especially where they are directly involved; by opportunity for ownership, with corresponding representation, or by a combination of ownership and control in co-operative production."

Misplaced Eulogy

A resident of Georgia feels impelled to assure his ghbors, "I am neither a Republican nor a Democrat, I an American." Whereupon, some non-partisan papers ceed to eulogize him. But why the eulogy? A man be an American without being either a Republican or mocrat. but he can also be an American and be at the time either a Republican or a Democrat. Jefferson Jackson were Democrats, and also good Americans. Jefferson and Jackson were supporters of the tra- al American policy of avoiding foreign entangle- . They were both supporters of the American policy ssed in the Monroe Doctrine. Cleveland was a good ocrat and a good American. He told Great Britain Americans interpreted the Monroe Doctrine in his . There have also been some pretty good Americans were also Republicans. We might mention, by illustration, such men as Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, McKinley and Roosevelt, leaving out of consideration many good men still living.

But there are some who are neither Republicans nor Democrats nor yet good Americans.

The point we wish to emphasize is that being either a Republican or a Democrat does not in any way, even by inference, qualify a mans Americanism. Whenever the Republican party or the Democratc party ceases to be an American party, when either of them ceases to be an "American first" party, then the people who continue to adhere to that party will be open to qusetion as to their Americanism. Until then, such an utterance as "I am neither a Republican nor a Democrat—I am an American," is pure buncombe.

Will he get the decision? By Morris

MILK SHORTAGE FEARS GONE AS EMBARGO ENDS

DAIRYMEN AND DISTRIBUTORS DEADLOCK ON PRICE RATE; INCREASE THREATENED.

Cleveland, Sept. 3.—The retail price of milk to Cleveland consumers hung in the balance Wednesday morning while producers, 200 of whom placed an embargo in effect in Cleveland, Monday, and distributors were in apparent deadlock over the wholesale price of milk.

While all danger of a serious shortage of milk that was threatened by the embargo seemed to have been eliminated the county fair price committee was preparing to take up the milk situation with a view toward determining the margin of profit the Cleveland distributing plants are operating under.

Shortage Declared Over.

The committee was to hold a special meeting at 3 p. m., at which time heads of the larger distributing plants in the city were to be questioned on the justification of an increase in the retail price if the farmers are granted their demanded increase of 3 cents a gallon.

All of the big milk companies stated during the morning that the supply received Tuesday afternoon and evening for Wednesday's distribution was normal.

Threaten Contempt Charges.

At the same time County Prosecutor Doerfler was obtaining a list of the producers who attended the meeting in Bainbridge at which time the embargo was decided upon. The prosecutor said any of the producers who are members of the Ohio Farmers' Co-Operative Milk Company will be cited for contempt of court for violation of an injunction obtained last week, restraining members of the organization from taking "concerted action."

Farmers are demanding 36 cents a gallon, which, they claim, is 1 cent less than the price allowed them by the federal food administration last December. The present price to the producer is 34 cents. The producers insist that while the food administration allowed them 37 cents, the maximum retail price was fixed at 15 cents a quart and 8 cents a pint. But retailers are charging 9 cents a pint.

Retailers have declared that if the wholesale price is boosted, an increase in the retail price, probably to 17 cents a quart, will be necessary if they are to enjoy a fair margin of profit.

How to Build a Cook Fire

By Adelia Belle Beard
Author, Artist; Secretary Girl Pioneers of America

The outdoor world is the real world and the best one to live in—when you know how. But no one can live long in the open without a fire, and, as we are going to take you out, first on short hikes, then on longer ones, you must learn the right way to build an outdoor fire. Get out of doors, then, if only in your back yard, and begin.

Fires in the open are built for three uses: for cooking, for warmth and cheer, and for signalling.

Gather your fuel first: dry cones, dry inner bark, or best of all, birch bark for tinder. Then small sized wood for starting, larger to put on later. Size means thickness, not length. Use soft wood first, hard wood last. Some soft woods are the pine, balsam-fir, spruce alder, and birch. Some hard woods are hickory, oak, black birch, and apple wood.

Begin with the COOK FIRE. Clear a space for it. No dry grass, no dry leaves, no branches near or overhead to spread the flames. Make the fire small and hot. There are several ways to build it. Here is one:

Bunch your tinder on the ground and over it lay small twigs the size of match sticks. Place two large sticks, not far apart, one on each side of the tinder, for andirons. These lift the firewood from the ground and allow for draft. Across the wooden andirons, over the tinder, arrange small sticks of soft wood, and over them crosswise put heavier kindling. Now fit a good sized stone or green log, close to the outer side of each andiron. The two stones or logs, must be the same height from the ground.

Light the tinder (don't waste matches); when the fire burns briskly, add hard wood of larger size. Wait until you have a good bed of hot coals before trying to cook, then place water pail or frying-pan over the fire, resting its side edges on the stones or logs at either side.

Hunting Eye Sets Out to Find the League of Nations

By R. S. Alexander, Associate Editor, Boys' and Girls' Newspaper Service

All summer, Hunting Eye had helped Swift Foot, the old Indian, guide the summer campers through the great North woods. Hunting Eye could tell the white men where to camp and where to fish; he could tell them the secrets of the woods and rivers; but he liked better to listen to them talk about the big world which he had never seen. He never tired of hearing about motor cars and air ships, about cities with wigwams higher than the highest trees in the forest, and about journeys across the sea in canoes longer than the arrow's flight.

Of all white men, Hunting Eye liked the Captain best, because the Captain told him stories of the great war. But when the Captain spoke with the other white men, he talked, not about the war, but about the "Treaty" and the "League of Nations." Hunting Eye asked Swift Foot what these strange things could be. "Many years ago," said Swift Foot "the Indian and the pale face warrior buried the hatchet and smoked the pipe of peace. It was a treaty, but it was not the 'League of Nations'."

EASTWARD TO THE LAND OF SUNRISE

Hunting Eye resolved to ask the white Captain to tell him all about the League of Nations. But it was the end of the summer. That night the Captain went back to the great city. He was gone and no one could answer Hunting Eye's question.

"Eastward to the land of sunrise," said Swift Foot, "to the new world where the white Captain lives, is many days' journey. The League of Nations is not here. It may be there." "I will go and see," said Hunting Eye.

The next morning he packed his pouch with food, and took his bow, his arrows, and his knife, and turning his face toward the dawn in the east, started on his long journey.

Give Us Strong Kaiser to Lead Us, Teuton Plea

PAN-GERMANS PREPARE TO RECOVER "STOLEN TERITORY."

Berlin, Sept. 3.—The Pan-German League, which is holding a convention here, has gone on record in favor of a "strong kaiser government restoration of the prewar boundaries and the admission of German Austria into the German empire."

Baron von Vistinghoff-Scheel declared that the Germans "will wrest the robbed territory piece by piece practically from the hands of the robbers."

"The accused Hapsburgs" (former ruling family of Austria-Hungary) were denounced by Dr. Rosin, of Vienna, representing the German group in German Austria in the national assembly.

"The accursed Hapsburgers are gone forever," declared Dr. Rosin. "We shall make short work of any of them returning. We are ready to join the radicals in combating the Hapsburgers. We demand a Hohenzollern prince when the change comes."

The Pan-Germans are closely allied with the militarists and yunkers and are held to be mainly responsible for the war. Their slogan was "Mittel Europa for Germans." They were the leaders also in the Hamburg-to-Bagdad movement for a German-controlled commercial route between those European-Asiatic ports.

SLATED AS GERMAN ENVOY TO AMERICA

Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen.

Dr. von Haimhausen, former counsellor to the German embassy in Washington, will return to the capital as ambassador, according to recent information. During the war he was active in German domestic politics and was at one time mentioned as a possible candidate for the first presidency.

NOTES OF PLAYS AND PLAYERS OF INTEREST TO ELYRIANS

Bessie Love
VITAGRAPH STAR

WHEN D. W. Griffith first met "the girl with the eyes that speak," he christened her Bessie Love and soon promoted her to stardom. Miss Love has justified the confidence of the great producer by an unfaltering development. Since becoming a Vitagraph star she has shone with new radiance in "A Yankee Princess," "The Enchanted Barn' and "The Wishing Ring Man." Because of her sincerity, her precocious talent and her extreme youth, Bessie Love has a future filled with greater promise perhaps, than any other ingenue of the screen.

"Oh Helen!" Pleases Large Audience

The Halton Powell Musical Comedy Company in the second performance of their weeks engagement, "Oh Helen," played to another packed house at the Rialto last night and the play was more enthusiastically received than their initial performance on Monday evening, as principal after principal were given receptions upon their first appearance, showed that they have already endeared themselves to the theatre-goers of Elyria, it was an entire change of settings, scenery and costumes.

Many new songs were introduced to the accompaniment of a beautiful dancing chorus and the versatile Mr. William Gross in his most appropriate character the "Rajah of the Island of Pon", with the co-operation of the clever little Rita Lawrence had the audience with them every minute while the work of Mr. Harrison and Mr Powell need no comment. The are old favorites in Elyria.

Tonight the company in its third appearance will offer for the approval of patrons of the Rialto on other Broadway success, "By the Sad Sea Waves," just as good, but different. Saturday at 2.30 there will be a special matinee.

LUCKY BILL—HE HAS TWO CHARMING LEADING LADIES

It pays to be a captain and wear a captain's trappings—even if it's only in the movies. There's a mysterious charm about the uniform that never fails to work. It makes the prettiest girls in town—or in the cast—flitting their shy, sweet glances your way, look utterable things, call you "my hero," and even—sometimes use your silver-haired shoulder to weep away the griefs that are blotting out the sunshine.

Captain November Jones—alias William Russell—will have two of the loveliest girls of the screen in his adoring train when he comes to the Dreamland next Sunday only in his latest picture, "The Hero Stuff," a rollicking satire on hero-worship. One of the captain's lassies is blonde, Winifred Westover, who made her screen debut several years ago under the Griffith auspices and has since made rapid strides to the front. She plays the part of "Nedra Joseph," a young miss just out of a fashionable San Francisco finishing school whose initial victory over the bored hero is scored through her total ignorance of his heroic exploits and the fact that she doesn't recognize him from his pictures in the papers.

MARY PICKFORD IN BRILLIANT PICTURE 'BEHIND THE SCENES'

Mary Pickford's photoplay, "Behind the Scenes" will be presented at the Strand theatre next Saturday "Behind the Scenes" is a delightful peep into the mazes of theatrical life from the other side of the footlights, by Margaret Mayo, who wrote the famous farce success, Baby Mine," and other successes. The author's charming touches and entrancing glimpses into the world of make-believe are accentuated by the delightful personality of the little star who interprets every situation with artistry.

SHOULD WOMEN SERVE ON JURIES? ANSWERED IN FILM

Considerable space has been devoted recently in the public press to this question of woman jurors The fair sex is already admissible to jury duty in certain States of the Union and agitation along those lines is rife in other states

Is a woman temperamentally fitted for service on a jury in a criminal case? Does feminine intuition make females better arbiters than men Will that intuition which women are conceded to possess in high degree prove a sure and safer guide than mere masculine logic? What would happen were a lone woman juror, holding out against the opinion of eleven male co-jurors, to find herself bullied, brow-beaten, harangued and almost third-degreed?

These and similar questions naturally arise in connection with Florence Reed's latest United screen vehicle, "The Woman Under Oath," which presents the remarkable case of the first woman juror appointed in a certain state The subject is timely, public, and particularly of feminine interest.

This latest form of feminine activity opens up to Florence Reed a novel role which at once provides that emotional actress wide scope for her undoubted histrionic powers and forms the basis of one of the most powerful screen dramas of recent times.

With Miss Reed's recent successes The Wives of Men, and Her Code of Honor, fresh in the minds of local picture patrons, record breaking attendances are expected for the engagement of The 'Woman Under Oath at the Bannon theatre, tonight and tomorrow.

'THE HOPE CHEST' MOST ATTRACTIVE

In the picturization of Mark Lee Luther's "The Hope Chest," Dorothy Gish carries the same personality and character that made her famous in "Hearts of the World." In many scenes she uses almost the same costume and the disdainful tossing of her head; the chic and teasing expressions that once brought peals of laughter from the audience when she acted the "Little Disturber" part; the whole individuality of her biggest success are being used to make this picture the most attractive in which she has as yet appeared. It will be displayed at the Strand theatre next Friday only.

CROOKS USE MORE INGENUITY THAN IS REQUIRED IN HONEST BUSINESS

It has been established by scientific research that it requires more brains, ingenuity and painstaking effort to succeed in the profession of crime than in almost any other line of endeavor. Fletcher Hempstead, the real crook and master cracksman of the Vitagraph feature, "The Hornet's Nest," affords an example.

This picture, which will be shown at the American theatre on Friday and Saturday, is a crook film of high order, adapted from the novel of the same name by Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, and features Earle Williams.

Hempstead, known as The Hornet, has led a troubled experience since the days of his youth, eluding police, living in disguise, cracking safes and forever feeling himself an outcast.

ROBERT Z. LEONARD DIRECTS NORMA TALMADGE

Robert Z. Leonard, popular leading man and director, directed Norma Talmadge in her latest Select Picture, "The Way of a Woman," in which she is presented by Joseph M. Schenck, and which can be seen today and tomorrow at the American theatre.

Mr. Leonard has had a varied and interesting career and is almost as well known a leading man as he is a director, having appeared in several Universal, Famous Players and Lasky productions. Before going into pictures he had already made a name for himself on both the operatic and the dramatic stages. He has sung over one hundred different roles in light opera.

"The Way of a Woman" is an adaptation of the famous Eugene Walter play, "Nancy Lee," which had a successful run of two years in New York. Under the excellent direction of Mr. Leonard and with as superb an actress as Miss Talmadge, supported by a wonderful cast, "The Way of a Woman" has lost none of the excellent dramatic qualities and finesse which it had as a stage play. The picture's a knock-out—the best Norma Talmadge picture yet seen. Conway Tearle plays opposite Miss Talmadge.

SUMMER PASTOR PREACHES GOOD SERMON SUNDAY

Oberlin, Sept. 3.—In concluding his service as summer pastor, Mr. Sanderson preached Sunday mornin at the First church on the typically Oberlin sort of theme, "Incarnation Through Friendship." In beginning his sermon, Mr. Sanderson frankly acknowledged that it was quite impossible for any careful student of President King to avoid speaking every little while on some aspect of religion as interpreted through friendship.

Friendship, the speaker defined as a condition in which there is on both sides something to be shared, an eagerness to share it, and some measure of reciprocal success in the undertaking.

He who would be a true friend must have some real resources. Yet who does not appreciate the friendship of a little child. So God, who [illegible] infinitely our superior, values [illegible] affection.

Friendship is not a Biblical word, but it is a Biblical idea. The word friend is often used in the Bible and it is the desire of God in Christ that all men everywhere should be [illegible] friends for there are no purposes in the heart of God that he is not ready to share with us as fast as we are capable of perceiving them.

The task of making the world a friendly world is a task which God cannot accomplish alone. It must be done if over it is done, by the children of God.

Mr. Sanderson concluded by asking the question, "If Jesus Christ stood here in the flesh, could he look into our eyes and say honestly, [illegible] are my friends ?"

OBERLIN DRYS PREPARED FOR FALL CAMPAIGN

CAN AMERICA GROW ITS FRUIT STOCKS?

Nurserymen Consider Now the Accepted Time—The New Quarantine Will Foster the Business.

THE above-ground portion of your fruit trees may be pure American, but the under-ground portion is very likely to be foreign. With the exception of a few apple and peach, most of the seedling plants [illegible] which grafting or budding is done are imported and even with the apple, though considerable progress has been made in producing American grown seedlings from imported French seeds, the great majority of nurserymen have [illegible] far preferred to import apple seedlings from France, and while some [illegible] them are higher in price, perhaps the greatest reason is that they can import them cheaper than they can grow them.

As the demand for highest grades [illegible] fruit and plant products increases, [illegible] should know more of the actual [illegible] of stocks to quality of product, to the length of life of the tree [illegible] plant, to its adaptability to the [illegible] and climate and to resistance to [illegible] and insect attacks.

It is claimed that in America any [illegible] of European soil and climate [illegible] be duplicated, and the problem [illegible] is how to produce in this country the millions of ordinary apple, [illegible] plum and cherry stocks which [illegible] have been secured largely [illegible]. "If stocks are to be produced [illegible] country, to take the place of [illegible] hitherto secured abroad," says [illegible] department of agriculture, "it [illegible] proper that effort should [illegible] by the government to aid [illegible] who are anxious to know where [illegible] can best be done and how it [illegible] done to the best advantage. The chief problems are to find regions and soils in this country where stocks may be commercially grown and to demonstrate on a commercial scale that such stocks are equal to or better than those grown abroad."

If we are ever to build up an American grown nursery business, now would seem to be the proper time to push it, because the foreign shippers are now more or less demoralized and the quarantine preventing the importation of foreign stocks on account of dangerous insects from plant diseases, which went into effect June 1, will encourage American nurserymen to begin to propagate their own stocks as soon as possible.

"I see no reason why America should not have a great development in the nursery line, as the war has taught us that we cannot only raise our own plants, but many of the seeds that we formerly imported," says Charles S. Calwell, president Corn Exchange National bank, Philadelphia. "Under ordinary conditions it would be dangerous enough, but under present conditions on account of the great scarcity of labor on the other side I have no doubt that the stock has been infected to a greater degree than ever, and the danger from importing such plants is greatly increased.

"Here in America we are short of help and likely will be for several years and we cannot afford to add to our troubles in the way of infected plants calling for labor to fight the scourge, when it is very easy to keep it out now."

Readjustment of Rates Supreme Requirmen for Real Conservation

No plan for real conservation of Natural Gas can be adopted that does not first contemplate a complete readjustment of rates for domestic consumers.

This statement does not admit of successful refutation, and the truth of it is self evident when conditions confronting Natural Gas distributing companies are fully understood.

Some very interesting and startling facts were revealed a few months ago during the time the U. S. Fuel administration was issuing orders regarding classification of gas customers—giving preference to domestic users and curtailing the supply to others—when one of the prominent gas distributing companies had an analysis made of its customers' bills by months covering a period of one year. This was done primarily for the purpose of ascertaining what effect the curtailment of gas supply to certain classes of customers would have on the company's revenue.

62% of gas consumers receive service at less than cost

38% are self-sustaining and carry loss of others

4.44% only of the total number produce a profit

Figures were then secured from a number of operating companies, which when tabulated showed that operating costs varied from 54 cents to $1.00 per month per customer, and a general average of 75 cents was adopted as a basis of cost. Estimates were then computed upon a cost of 75 cents per customer per month, supplied with gas at the retail price of 35 cents per 1000 cubic feet.

It was found that out of 447,041 customers, 277,262 or 62%, received service at less than actual cost and were liabilities to the companies, and that the cost of carrying them was borne by the 38% of the remaining customers who were self-sustaining.

The National Fuel Administration, State Commissions and other regulatory bodies have held that the domestic consumer must be served first in the event of depletion of the natural gas supply. In many cases companies have been ordered to discontinue service to large customers and this order has obtained in instances for periods of several months.

Now read farther and reflect as to the effect of the discontinuance of gas by large users. The analysis of these figures on costs show that if the distributing companies were to lose 19,823 customers, or all those using over 25,000 cubic feet of gas per month, or 4.44% of the present customers, the remaining number, 427,218, or 95.56%, would pay a gross amount only sufficient to cover the actual cost of serving them, without one cent of profit to the distributing companies, not even a fraction of one per cent. for interest on the millions of dollars invested in their properties.

No one of even moderate intelligence would expect natural gas distributing companies to continue service very long under conditions described above, if their only source of profitable revenue was cut off. That is why we say that a complete readjustment of rates for domestic consumers is the real issue in planning conservation. Until such a readjustment is made and the companies engaged in distributing natural gas are given sufficient revenue from sales to domestic consumers to cover costs of service, to allow of further drilling to maintain supply, resort must be had to sales to larger and more profitable consumers in order that the companies shall still continue in business.

In support of this contention, we quote from the report of the United States Bureau of Mines on Dallas, Texas, January, 1918:

> "The prices for gas for domestic consumption have generally been so low as not to provide, if only domestic sales were made, even sufficient income for overhead charges and operating expenses, so that in every case recourse has been had to large sales for industrial purposes to make up the deficiency. These large sales do not appreciably increase the operating expenses, and do not require additional investment, and therefore do not increase overhead charges. * * * Unlimited and uneconomical use, because of cheapness, is a calamity for which every individual of the community will eventually have to pay."

So a final analysis of the whole situation as regards the natural gas problem in its relation to the domestic consumer is whether the domestic consumer, to whom natural gas because of its cleanliness and convenience is of relatively more value than to any other consumer, is willing to state that value in an income for the natural gas companies sufficiently ample for all expense of production, and transportation, and a reasonable return on the investment for means of distribution, and to overcome the loss encountered in the discontinuance of sales for industrial purposes.

NOTE:—The management of this company, desiring a full and free discussion of this question, invites its patrons to indicate by letter to the company their opinions on the question of failing supply and what must be done to conserve it. Incidentally for their enlightenment in considering this problem we have prepared a booklet containing information data and recommendations from the most eminent authorities on the subject, which we will be pleased to send to any patron who will fill out and mail us this coupon with his name and address.

HAMPTON COURT THOUGHT LIKELY PLACE FOR KAISER'S TRIAL

Hampton Court, one of the most popular royal castles in England, where ex-kaiser may be tried, and Lord Finlay, who will preside at trial.

Hampton Court is now believed to be the place where the allies will bring the ex-kaiser of Germany to trial for his crimes against humanity. This court is the largest and probably the most popular of the English castles. If the court is used the actual trial will be conducted in the king's great council chamber. It will be conducted in English before five judges, representing the United States, England, France, Italy and Japan. Lord Finlay, the lord high chancellor and famous British jurist, will preside at the trial, which is expected to open next April. Finlay is seventy-seven years of age and has been both solicitor-general and attorney general of Great Britain.

With Women Of Today

(By Edith Moriarty)

An hour of singing to observe the first anniversary of the signing of the armistice is the idea put forth by Mrs. D A Campbell. After all nothing can denote happiness any more than glad songs and song, unlike fireworks and other ostentatious displays, are within reach of even the poorest purse. Those who lack sentiment will not applaud Mrs. Campbell's plan, but there are at least 9,000,000 women who approve of the "hour of song."

Mrs Campbell is chairman of the community music department of the National Council of Women, which has a membership of 9,000,000. She thinks that there could be no more fitting way of observing the first anniversary of the signing of the armistice than an hour of singing songs of thanksgiving and praises. It is planned to have the hour of song start at 11 a. m. on November 11.

WOMEN WANT CITIZENSHIP

"It is hard to say which (men or women) seemed more eager to learn Miss Mary B. Foran says of her citizenship classes in Rockdale, Ill. "It was deeply regretted by both students and teachers when we closed."

The Rockdale school for the foreign born is the result of a concerted effort on the part of the naturalization bureau of the department of labor and many other agencies, and its success is an argument for such unified effort.

The reason for this success is that Joliet's public-spirited men and women have united with the federal government in a definite, concrete, practical program. The aim has been:

To establish classes in the public schools for the citizenship education of the foreign born, to get there who should have this instruction into the classes; to have subject matter and methods the best possible for the purpose; to make the school life a center of real social life where various nationalities might be at one with each other and with the native Americans. There is no way of making citizens out of aliens other than this.

GIRL MANAGED PARIS PHONES

From an assistant editor's desk in a New York publishing house to chief operator in a polyglot telephone exchange in Paris is a long jump, but the versatile Miss Anne Purdy has proved a success in both capacities.

Everyone who ever tried to use a telephone in Paris even before the war has poignant remembrances of that harrowing experiment and some small appreciation of the difficulties which Miss Purdy had to overcome. When last October she sailed for France without previous telephone experience and only such knowledge of telephony as she had been able to gather in a brief but concentrated study of New York centrals. She volunteered as a Y. M. C. A worker and succeeded in building up as good a telephone system as any in France today between the dozens of buildings, including one of the largest office buildings in the French capital, that the "Y" is using in the multitudinous activities of its Parisian headquarters.

Her staff of eleven operators are able to overcome almost any linguistic difficulties, for they are recruited from the ends of the earth. Five are French girls, two are Belgians who formerly worked in New York, two are elgian refugees. Two hail from Rumania. one is the largest office biuldings in the French capital, that the "Y" is using in the multitudinous activities of its Parisian headquarters.

Miss Purdy was a member of the class of 1918 at Vassar.

SHERIFF AND DEPUTY CLERK ENJOYED RIDE

Sheriff N. D Backus and Deputy Clerk A. J. Richards took a ride in the airplane at the county fair yesterday afternoon. Both claimed that they enjoyed the sensation and had the time of their lives. Before they took the ride Deputy Richards swore in Buck Weaver and Clarence Brown the aviators as deputy sheriffs. These men are permanently located at Avon where they conduct an aviation school.

Sheriff Backus claims they are the first aviator as deputy sheriffs in the country and believes that the time will come when they will be of use to him in tracking criminals. He also figures on some day sending a prisoner or two to Columbus penitentiary by the air route.

Mr. and Mrs. A C Miller returned Tuesday from a week end visit with friends in Jamestown, N. Y.

Mr and Mrs John Hitzelberger of Medina motored to Elyria Saturday to spend Labor day with Mr. and Melville Witter of Boston avenue.

Provides Haven for War Heroes in Central America

London, Sept. 3—A party of former officers of the British forces held a meeting here today to get acquainted preparatory to their departure tomorrow for Central America, where they will take up life on a ranch under the supervision of Brig. Gen. Alfred C. Critchley, former commander of the Royal air force. Critchley originated the plan in recognition of the desire on the part of many other demobilized officers for healthy sporting and adventurous open air life, combined with unlimited possibilites of a commercial nature.

On the ranch, which is located in the center of a well-stocked sporting area it is purposed to breed horses, cattle and sheep and grow cotton and other crops.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OPENED TODAY

The public schools opened this morning with a largely increased attendance. Official figures are not yet ready, but it is known that there are 700 registrations in the high school, which beats all former records.

The grade schools are also filled to capacity, and the necessity of at once building more schools is emphasized. Today has been taken up with registration and assigning new scholars to their proper classes, and in outfitting them with their books and supplies. Regular sessions will begin tomorrow.

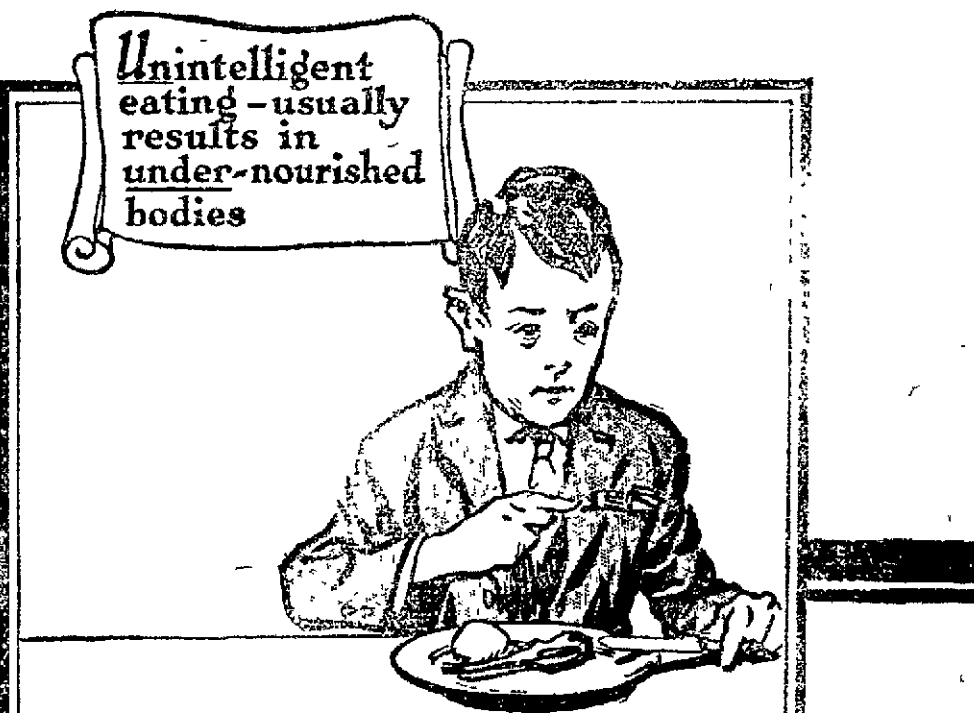
Strong bodies usually grow out of a bread and milk diet



Unintelligent eating—usually results in under-nourished bodies

Pure Milk and pure Bond Bread make husky healthy, boys

GIVE a boy or girl the right food—and plenty of healthful exercise, and good health comes to him as naturally as flowers thrive with sunshine and rain.

If your children are under-weight, under-developed—if they are cross, nervous and sickly, the chances are that they are not getting the right food.

Six food elements growing boys and girls must have

Health and proper growth depend on food, and are impossible if one of these six elements is lacking or insufficient.

1. Proteids—Tissue and bone-building foods.
2. Carbohydrates (starchy foods) energy producing.
3. Fats—Producing heat and energy.
4. Minerals (Lime phosphorus, salt, etc.) Foods that build bones and regulate bodily functions.
5. "Vitamines"—growth-inducing elements present in wheat and milk.
6. Water.

Bond Bread and pure milk yield most nourishment at least cost

Good bread and pure milk contain all of these six life-giving elements in proper proportions, and in the most easily digestible forms.

Besides being better food, Bond Bread and milk cost less than any other food, nourishment considered.

We would all be healthier, and wealthier if we cut down on meat and ate more Bond Bread and milk.

Change for a month to Bond Bread and milk and watch your children's health improve.

The purity of Bond Bread is safeguarded as thoroughly as the purity of milk

The laws which enforce pure milk are no more strict and rigid than Bond Bread's own pure food laws.

Not only are all the ingredients listed on the wrapper of Bond Bread—and guaranteed pure by the Bond of the General Baking Company—

But the Bond Bread process, patterned after the best home baked loaves submitted by local housewives in our baking contest, makes every grain of wheat yield its nourishment in the most palatable and digestible form.

Bond Bread is so named because each loaf bears this bond of the General Baking Company

NATIONAL NET CHAMP DEFENDS TITLE IN CHAMPIONSHIP TOURNEY

R. Lindley Murray, at left, and Dean Mathey, caught during their match at Forest Hills.

R. Lindley Murray, national lawn tennis champion, has been facing what is probably the greatest field of tennis stars ever gathered together, in the national tournament at Forest Hills. he is defending his title. Murray is playing through. Pitted against Murray are four of Australia's greatest stars, including Gerald Patterson and Norman Brookes, the Jap experts; Dean Mathey and Watson-Washburn, A. E. F. champions, and other American stars. In his match with Dean Mathey, Murray won in straight sets, 6—3, 6—4, 10—8, displaying his old-time skill.

IT'LL BE SHINE BALL AGAINST SHINE BALL IF THEY MEET

As every American league buglet knows, Eddie Cicotte's shine ball is the sensation of the young league. Likewise, every National league fan is hep to the fact that Hod Eller, young Cinci hurler, packs a shine ball that has helped him win more than his share of games for the Reds. If these two babies meet in the world series they ought to furnish a unique and interesting afternoon. A bitter fight has been waged in both leagues against the freak delivery of these pitchers. Cleveland and Detroit lead the fight against Cicotte's mysterious shoot, and the Giants, when they saw that the National league race wouldn't be a walkaway for them, set up a howl about Eller's delivery, most of the other clubs joining in. Whether the presence of the freak delivery in the world series will cause any trouble isn't known. In view of the fact, though, that both clubs which now seem headed to battle in the big classic, boast a shine ball artist nothing probably will be said about it.
